

Many tasks were started later than anticipated due to team member's other priorities, but overall the sprint consisted mainly of bug fixes given this was the last sprint and most planned features were already completed, with the exception of the chat room which was added last minute from a very late suggestion from the founder. The sprint velocity was also slower compared to the last sprint, purely because there were less tasks to complete this sprint.