

The critical path for the sprint is the creation of the chat (CPE-58), as it was the main new feature added. One risk area is the group chat creation as currently someone can add themselves into a group chat, essentially adding two of the same person to a group chat.

What went wrong and lessons learned:

One thing that went wrong was there were issues with the shipments being displayed not being the ones tied to the organization a person was part of. There were some issues with the end points and the data being collected from the database. The lesson learned is to have better communication with the original designer of the database when creating new endpoints and adjusting tables to ensure issues like this don't arise again.